"If there were within my power to live again my boyhood days, and if I could shape things to suit myself, one of the first things I would do would be to bring about a better understanding between myself and the grownups around me. There would be little trouble between people if everyone understood everyone else; and every man certainly ought to get the boy viewpoint as far as he possible can in order to be of real help to the boy."

Literacy empowers people. It is the foundation for virtually all forms of education and an essential component of poverty reduction, social inclusion, and economic development.

Despite the importance of literacy, there are more than 800 million people unable to read or write in the world today, and 64 percent are women and girls.
